

LOCAL GOVERNMENT LAW

Billings, Cochran, Lyles, Mauro and Ramsey has represented local governments, zoning boards and planning boards for many years. The firm has an extensive history of assisting clients in nearly every phase of governmental operations including public finance, land use, construction claims, contract negotiations and regulatory issues. Our attorneys can provide comprehensive representation and are prepared to address the many legal issues faced by local government entities and authorities.

Our attorneys regularly attend public meetings for boards, commissions and other governmental agencies. Our depth of knowledge paired with our attorney's experience provides our clients with the expertise to represent them in litigation and municipal transactions.

We also represent numerous special purpose governmental districts throughout the state of Florida, including community development districts and community redevelopment agencies. Our firm will assist in the planning and creation of a special district and provide guidance to serve, operate and maintain the infrastructure and services of the special district.
